

American Journal of
PUBLIC HEALTH

Homelessness and Public Health

The American Journal of Public Health (AJPH) intends to publish a theme issue on the topic of homelessness and public health. Papers are invited on the following areas: epidemiology of homelessness and housing instability, homelessness and health disparities, development or evaluation of effective interventions, impact of service delivery, characteristics and needs of homeless veterans, and emerging risk populations or characteristics. We also invite original research papers featuring the identification and treatment of medical and or mental health disorders associated with homelessness, contribution of social context, ecological analysis of population data, and evaluation of promising prevention strategies.

All interested authors are invited to consider different categories of manuscripts as indicated on the AJPH website. All manuscripts will undergo the peer review process by the AJPH editors and peer referees as defined by AJPH policy. Manuscripts will be due to the Journal by January 1, 2013, and can be submitted at <http://ajph.edmgr.com>. For more information on this supplement, please contact the guest editors: vincent.kane@va.gov or culhane@upenn.edu.

Guest Editors

Vincent Kane, MSS
National Center for Homelessness among Veterans
Department of Veterans Affairs

Dennis Culhane PhD
Director of Research National Center on Homelessness among Veterans
The Dana and Andrew Stone Professor of Social Policy
University of Pennsylvania